Rezon8 Capital & Advisory Group Expands Portfolio by Investing in Artificial Intelligence Software Company

GREAT FALLS, VA – January 19, 2016 – Rezon8 Capital & Advisory Group has announced it has made an investment in New Sapience, an early-stage technology company based in Baltimore, Maryland, that is focused on developing software to enable machine comprehension, an achievement that will result in the creation of the first actual Artificial General Intelligence (AGI) systems. Rezon8’s investment was made as part of a $1 million early seed round completed by New Sapience.

New Sapience is creating a technology called Modeled Intelligence (MI), which will allow machines to comprehend and communicate in multiple human languages, leading to the ability of machines to learn new human concepts and solve everyday problems. The objective is to finally fulfill the promise of machine comprehension and yield the long-sought-after capability of Artificial General Intelligence.

"Rezon8 is always seeking opportunities to invest in new and exciting technology-driven ventures, and New Sapience fits well into our growing portfolio," said K. Paul Singh, Founder and CEO of Rezon8 Capital & Advisory Group. "We look forward to supporting New Sapience in future funding rounds and commercializing its technology."

"We are excited to have Rezon8 as an investor in our seed round that was successfully closed out, and we are now moving into our Angel financing round prior to our Series A," said Sean Reineke, President and CEO of New Sapience. "The USPTO has issued New Sapience the Notice of Allowance on our core patent application, and we are now aggressively ramping up our development efforts to accelerate getting to market."

About Rezon8 Capital & Advisory Group
